

Managing Life with Cancer:

It's OK to not be OK

If you've been diagnosed with cancer, your world and your family's world have suddenly been turned upside down. In addition to choosing medical treatment, you may experience physical side effects, absence from work, emotional distress, financial concerns and family issues.

We can help you handle
the new challenges ahead.

Join us for a free program presented by Katie Racz, UTMC social worker. She will discuss support services at the Eleanor N. Dana Cancer Center at The University of Toledo and in the community to help patients and their families manage the social, emotional and spiritual aspects of living with cancer.

- Thursday, April 19
- 5:30 p.m. Registration and refreshments
- 6 p.m. Program

Call 419.383.5243 and register today.

This program is open to patients, caregivers and health-care providers. There is no cost to attend, but reservations are requested.
